A photograph of a tree trunk with dense ivy growing on it. The ivy is a mix of green and yellowish-brown, suggesting some leaves are dead or dry. The tree trunk is light-colored and has a rough, textured bark. The background is a light, textured surface, possibly a wall or a backdrop. The overall composition is vertical, with the tree trunk running from the bottom towards the top.

The 1993
Hi-O-Hi
Oberlin College

Oberlin — Just a little bit bigger than the typical liberal arts school (if there is such a thing), with a lot more to offer in terms of courses, living arrangements, and diversity of students. We, the 1993 Hi-O-Hi staff, finally rejected, after long debate, the notion of an overall theme for the book. We concluded that no one "theme" could possibly encompass the different experiences of each Obie. So, we asked a series of short-answer questions to random students, hoping to better represent the opinions of our community and the people within it. We definitely got some diverse answers! And that is one of the things that makes Oberlin unique — the individuality of each person here. Nevertheless, there is a common thread tying all of us together — whether we're letting off steam at the gym, frantically pouring over notes before a big exam, practicing hour after hour after hour for a recital, trying to stay awake in Mudd, running around in an apron looking for tahini, or just hanging out — we are all Obies with a desire to think, learn, and be creative. So that's our "theme." Make of it what you will, but mostly just enjoy the book.

Our first (and most appropriate) question was ...

If you could rename
the "Hi-O-Hi," what would you call it?

"A Year in the Life of Obieland"
"Our Oberlin"
"Yeobook"
"Fab Faces Going Places"
"Mordecai's Delight"
"Pointless"
"Total Cheese"
"The World Inside the Salad Bar"
"Rebels Without a Clue"
"Oberlin is the Terror that Flocks the Night"
"Anything but it's current name"
"Who cares?"

what's the deal w/ the OBIS keyboards
I can't find a semicolon anywhere!
- semi colon-less

This is a tricky multiple choice, but it's never too soon to get in some practice for the GRE:

- It's made in Canada; they don't use semicolons there.
- The custom-built OBIS terminal haughtily ignores punctuation so you can always substitute a blank for a semicolon; most faculty will also accept this solution for honors paper work too.
- RAE knows the answer, but s/he's not telling
- this is not the time or the place for colon jokes
- half of the above

Ode to the Co-op

Oh co-op, oh co-op,
Where all books are found.
Our home of Obie paraphernalia
Is now a hole in the ground.

To the chagrin of alumni,
Upper-classers, faculty,
Their provider on the corner
Is naught but a memory.

Temporarily housed
In Westervelt Hall,
Quite a trek across campus;
Our Oberlin makeshift mall.

Cashing checks, buying texts,
Or a "Find the Elvis" pen.
Walking out with all you need
Only to return once again.

Con students buying music,
First years in Obie gear,
CDs, lava lamps, playing cards,
If you need it, it's here — never fear.

Oh co-op, dear co-op,
Will you ever be the same?
Please hurry to your corner,
Because that hole looks pretty lame.

P.S. — And because we love you.

Hi-O-Hi poll

Students vote in referendum; 658 for, 665 against yearbook

By TOM BALMER

A referendum on the yearbook questions was held last night with 1336 students casting ballots on the issue. Of this 665 were against having a yearbook for 1971-72 and there should be a yearbook.

The results of the poll were sent to the Student Life (SLC) today for its act reviewing the student budget, drawn up by Finance Committee, with an allocation of $13,000 for Hi. This expenditure has been criticized by some who believe that the money spent by other organizations.

Although SLC acted at press time, it seems it will change its mind of the very divisive and SLC's past action meeting the confirmed the $13,000 authorized last summer by General Assembly of students. It is action will stand.

The unofficially conducted by jur

Chuck Ettelson following a decision by SLC not to hold a Hi-O-Hi referendum. This decision came at Friday's SLC meeting after Mr. Ettelson's petitions signed by 364 students urged SLC to conduct of greater interest in this issue than students have shown towards any issue in some time.

Interest encouraging

Mr. Ettelson said he felt that even if SLC did not act on the Hi-O-Hi allocation in light of the poll, the many students showed and student

Letters:

Oberlin Grad objects to Moore-centric HI-O-HI

An open letter to the editors of the 1992 HI-O-HI yearbook:

A yearbook should serve two functions: one, as an historical document, a record of the school at a particular time, and two, as a souvenir which captures the school's character and mood. Although a yearbook can't fulfill those rolls absolutely, your attempt is so amateurish and adolescent that it is an embarrassment to my class and this school.

First, the yearbook has appalling amounts of unused white space. This is compounded by your puzzling concentration on inanimate objects. I find the pictures of flowers, people's feet, etc. a total waste; the photographs are not specific to this class and do not merit the omission of people.

Second, you have a two-page spread of the production of Gilbert and Sullivan's "The Mikado," in addition to the misplaced headline "Stunning performance of The Mikado" (page 91). I appreciate the function of the G&S Players and have had two leading roles in their productions, yet I can not fathom why you have awarded it such attention when given the choice of so many successful dramatic events of greater artistic and critical significance. The G&S players are of marginal dramatic importance and their performers are mostly underclassmen who will have another day to be remembered. You also inserted a blurb of praise which was totally baffling in its aimlessness. Many people remain unsure that "even a stereotyped opera can work." I am sure that in your supplement, you will include records of at least the Main Stage performances from both semesters.

Last, upon my first look-through, I was surprised to find a single person appearing at least four times (pages 11, 35, 78, 201) not including his underclassman picture. By coincidence, it was the same person who had sold me the yearbook, Mordecai Moore, the yearbook's editor-in-chief. Mordecai Moore was much more fortunate than most of my senior friends who only had a senior picture. He was much luckier than the seniors who weren't as important as the quarter-page reproduction of the "New England Country Dancing" logo (page 62). He was even luckier than the four students who died and have nothing to be remembered by other than a headline in quotes (page 11) over pictures of people eating. Perhaps the color picture of Mordecai on that same page is meant to show him reflecting over their deaths, although to us they remain nameless. Previous yearbooks have been more considerate.

By your incompetence, I have only a distorted and incomplete representation of this institution that does not reflect any of the school's better qualities. You have made the mediocre seem the standard, and the inconsequential seem the vital. You have dramatically disappointed every single owner of the 1992 yearbook with whom I have spoken. You have failed even to include the seniors' majors.

I recommend you take two actions to make certain that this catastrophe is not repeated: first, use a more active approach to recruiting. Find and include people who have established reputations as graphic artists in campus publications. Second, never ever put yourself before the school. This is not a vehicle for your artistic expression or for your personal memory. This is an important part of leaving for a quarter of this campus. If you put a staff member in more than once, you are violating our trust and intruding on our single most important relic. I am certain that the supplement and that next year's yearbook will show improvement.

GRADING

To facilitate this new lab teaching approach, you will be graded solely on the contents of your notebook. The organization of each experimental write-up must follow these guidelines:

1. Name in indelible ink printed clearly on the front of each notebook. If there is more than one notebook, give each notebook a number on the front cover. Each notebook must be numbered chronologically.
2. Table of contents on the first page of each notebook. The entries should be listed as shown below and always updated: (updating - 5% of grade)

Table of Contents

Title of Experiment	Reaction	Pages
----------------------------	-----------------	--------------

3. Date of entry at top of the first page describing work done that day. (5% of grade)

4. Title of Experiment (5% of grade)

5. Reaction or reaction sequence using chemical structure notation if (a) chemical reaction(s) is (are) being performed. If a reaction or reaction sequence is being performed, it is convenient (but not required) to label your reactants with Roman numerals so that they can be indicated as such in the procedure. (15% of grade)

↳ write name, m.w., g, mol, commercial source

6. Procedure: This is an accurate record of your lab work that day. It must be reproducible and not a copy of the experimental outline. Experimental details such as observations, weight of preweighed flask, final weight of dry product, etc. must always be included. (25% of grade)

7. Continuation markers: At the bottom of each page, indicate to which page the work on that particular experiment is continued, e. g., "cont. to p. 3". Also, be sure to write at the top of the continuing page from which page the entry is continued, e. g., "cont. from p. 1". You will find that continuation markers are a handy way of keeping tabs on where you kept lab entries that do not follow consecutive pages. (5%)

8. Calculations and Results: For synthetic work, this means a record of yield (in grams), a calculation of percent yield (showing work!), original spectra and their interpretation. For kinetic work or standard curves, it means a table of data (y vs. x), clearly indicating units and also including calculated functions where appropriate. (25% of grade)

9. Conclusions: A summary of what was accomplished by this experiment as well as a discussion of the significance of experimental results, e. g., "The synthesis of acetyl salicylic acid (aspirin) was achieved. The yield of this reaction was excellent (85%) and the purity of the product was confirmed both by a single-spot on TLC at an R_f distinct from that of the starting material and by the absence of a phenolic O-H stretch in its IR spectrum." (15% of grade)

ALL WORK MUST BE DESCRIBED IN THE THIRD PERSON PASSIVE VOICE:

Incorrect

I extracted the aqueous phase with 5 ml of ether.

Correct

The aqueous phase was extracted with 5 ml of ether.

Dilute the solution to mark with deionized water.

The solution was diluted to the mark with deionized water.

LAB SAFETY

Eye goggles or glasses with side shields must be worn at ALL TIMES in the lab! Each infraction of this rule will result in the loss of 5 points from the lab safety grade. And yes, one can have a negative lab safety grade. Other safety considerations are improper use/absence of gloves when handling toxic chemicals (-2 points), improper handling of flammable solvents (-2 points), improper connection of electrical equipment (-2 points), disposing of organic solvents down the sink (-5 points), improper disposal of glass (-5 points), improper handling of a Bunsen burner flame (-5 points), not cleaning up a mess (-5 points).

SPECIAL NOTE: Experiments 1, 2, and 3 are to be performed concurrently in order to make maximum use of lab time.

When you came to Oberlin, what did you discover about yourself that you didn't know before?

"I'm God"

"I'm a man"

"I discovered that it's okay not to shave your legs"

"That my hair doesn't look good when it's in between short and long"

"I'm heterosexist"

"I was a total nervous wreck"

"12 hours is a lot of work"

"That you study 7 days a week and you don't party on Friday and Saturday"

"I hated Chemistry"

"I hated Harkness"

"I discovered that it was fun to run around North Quad in the rain"

"I like being weird — but here I'm considered normal."

I don't want to be normal"

"The world seems a lot more musically talented than I am"

"Tequila and beer don't mix"

"I know everything — that's why I came here"

The moon was full and remote last night, but tonight its subtle fog through the gentle haze of late night city lights and black cats hunting. In isolated places people are alive in darkened spots of music and laughter. Being near all this, the bluer beam grows less distant in order to touch the camaraderie which fills eyes with intensity. Voices ramble and mingle and cross one another and the moon is jealous. Down here, artificial lights cast eerie shadows while trying to eliminate black corners, and most people are asleep in their dreams. But there are some who defy the greyed-out sky in order to seek contentment within the bright smoky square of a window. They alone could know that the moon is quiet tonight, but as it slides softly out of round, it goes so slowly that none notice until they rejoice its fullness again next month. And so time slips by, tied into itself, and we are all carried along with it in unknowing waves.

MY SPACE, SINCE YOU'VE CHOSEN TO VISIT IT, IS DISTINCTLY TRANSFORMED.
-- Gail Godwin The Old Woman

What is laid down, ordered, factual, is never enough to embrace the whole truth: life always spills over the rim of every cup.
-- Boris Pasternik

Love doesn't die. It keeps growing.
Perhaps someone you love has to die before you can believe that.
-- Rita Mae Brown Binge

Sac? Because Dr Seuss went to Dartmouth.

To laugh often and much, to win the respect of intelligent people and the affection of children; to earn the appreciation of honest critics and endure the betrayal of false friends; to appreciate beauty, to find the best in others, to leave the world a bit better, whether by a child, a garden patch, or a redeemed social condition, to know even one life has breathed easier because you have lived. This is to have succeeded. -- Ralph Waldo Emerson

As I walked on with a heavy heart
 Then a stone danced on the tide
 And the song went on Though the lights were gone
 And the North wind gently sighed
 And an evening breeze coming from the East
 That kissed the riverside
 So I pray now child that you sleep tonight
 When you hear this lullaby.
 - Shane MacGowan

So, so, so. WELL, SO YEAH. SO SEE? SO, YEAH,
 YOU KNOW? WELL, I HOPE SO.
 -- JENNY COOK
 I signed with the teeny-weeniest signature possible.
 It looked like a baby ant. Enjoy it in good health! I said.
 -- Kurt Vonnegut Slapstick

Overheard at a typical staff meeting:

Mordecai: Is there a hyphen in between Editor-in-Chief?

Emily: I need a color men's soccer about this big kicking the ball in that direction.

Mike: Oh, I didn't mean vertical, I meant horizontal.

Mark: Remember, spaces are lowercase letters.

Jenn: Is 66 half of 72?

Emily: Watch out, I'm violent!

Meg: Well, it looks like we're going to have to blow Gary up.

Mordecai: Someday, there's going to be a heavy metal Jewish grunge rock group from the suburbs.

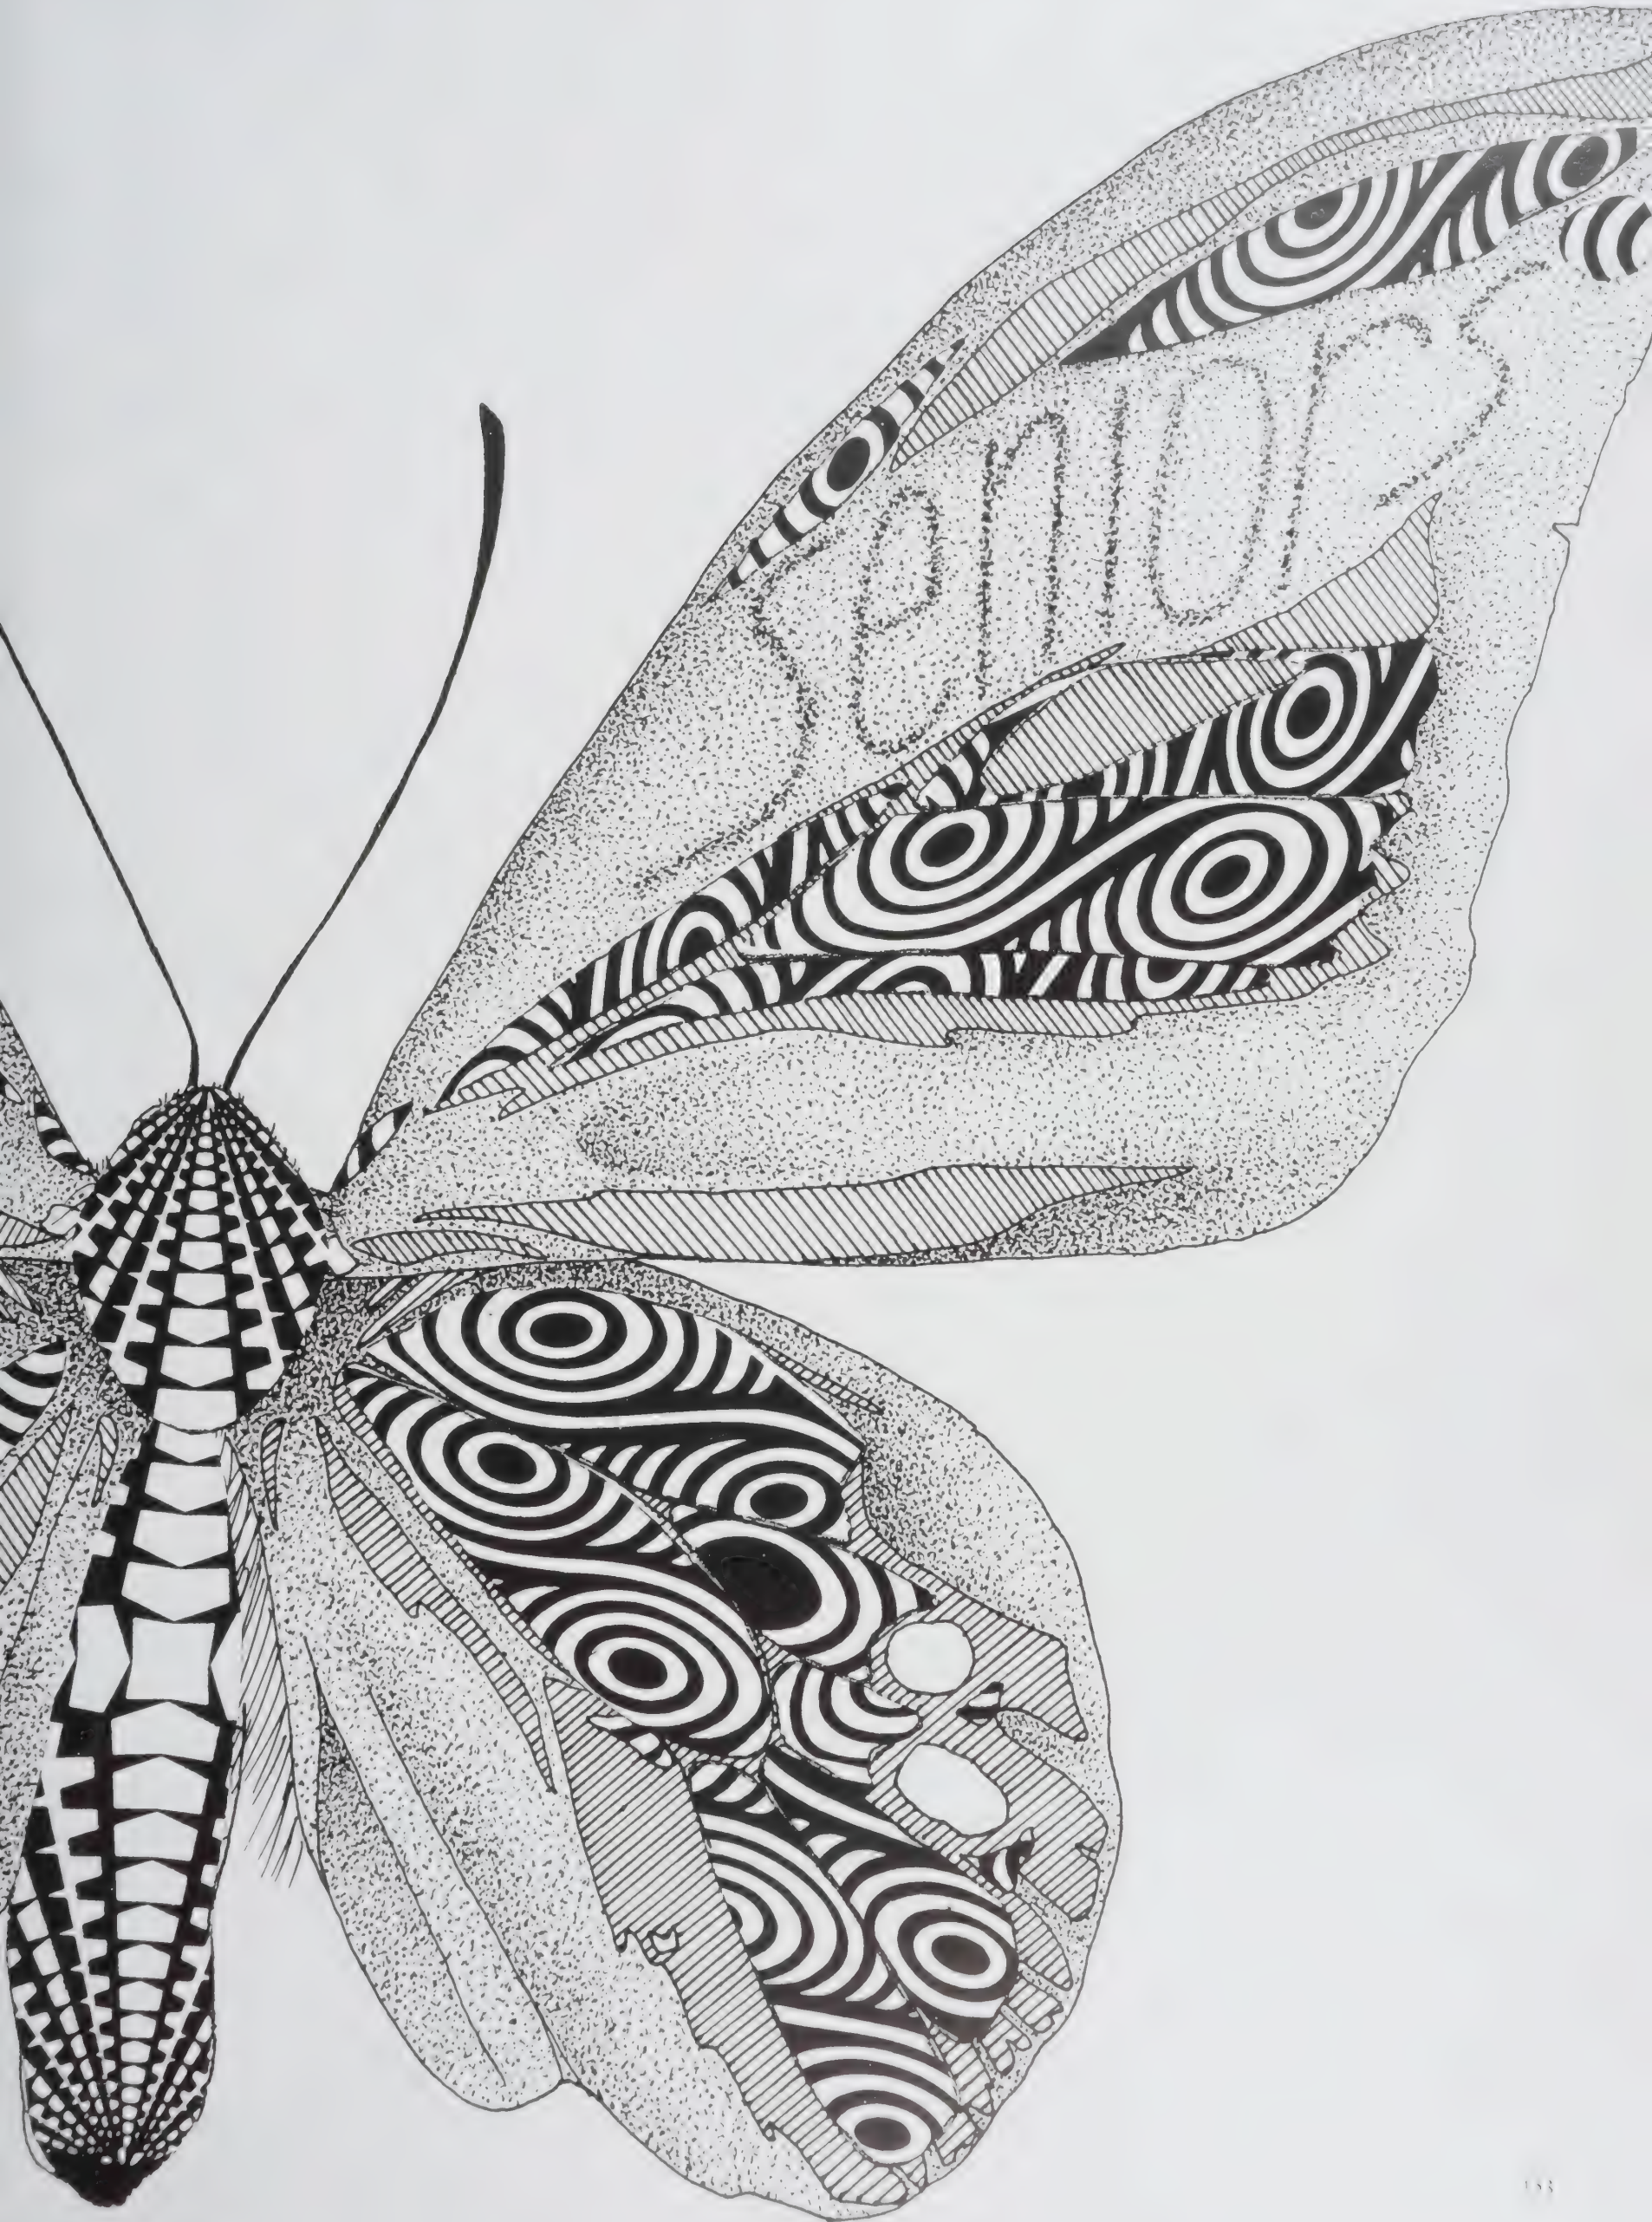

Jenn: Is Pepsis the plural of Pepsi?

Look I'll be the first to admit I was incredulous when I heard Mordecai was going to be teaching a class. Why shouldn't I have been? Mordecai, who was so boring he frightened the animals. So proud of himself he put his picture into the yearbook 60 years ago, although he wasn't even graduated. He thereby taking up space that rightfully gone to Nathan LaBrie. He's a guy so hairy the indigenous people of Canada and Tibet each create legends about him and his friends. Mordecai Moore is not your average bear.

But then again Mordecai is not your average bear. And speaking of bears, I lay out the facts for you all. When I was looking at the moorester, I was thinking something. I was thinking, I know what? This guy could seduce a forty year old woman. You know that sort of woman who isn't getting laid from her husband, so she goes to the joints with her girlfriends. He could be a Chippendale's dancer.

Let's take a look at his derriere, as the French say, in between mouthfuls of wine, topped with a bearnaise sauce. Mordecai has got a nice ass. It's big and round. Baby's got back, as they say in my family. And his body is not bad. He's been working out, I tell he takes care of his body, starting to develop pectorals. I've seen him pumping iron late at the gym in good shape.

But can't something be said about the hair? Yes, I know the hair is bad, but it can't be that bad — I mean Mordecai Williams gets laid once in a while. Women are attracted to the sort of frequent Chippendales. And Why Oberlin?

"To get the hell out of New York"
 "I got sick of the beautiful mountains in Colorado"
 "I wanted to come to someplace that was flat"
 "For the town" (sarcastic)
 "Why not?"
 "I ask myself that sometimes"
 "Because everyone's just as strange as I am"
 "The good academic reputation, and the strong background on my prospective major, mixed with the great opportunity to be involved in athletics because of the small size of the school, and I found the small town setting to be attractive because this campus functions like a large metropolis, and most importantly, I recognize the spiritual need of the people here and I felt directed by God to come here and make a difference."
 "Are you done?"
 "NO!"

read are here to help us feel good enough about our identities resistors that we can openly challenge racist/sexist/classist/nophobic/speciest/ageist standards? And what if "we", meaning:
 collectively, decide that the pigs, i mean, the cops, are not re to protect us (obvious) and the gov't isn't here to protect and Daddy isn't gonna protect us (except when it makes him ok good) AND SO "we" are gonna start protecting each other.
 at's right. 'Cuz when you fuck with my girlfriend, you are king with me...and i don't need no judge and jury, no guilty all proven innocent bullshit to know SHE IS TELLING THE TRUTH.
 at do we do when there is a daterape guy who is coming to ws or playing in a local band? What do we do when we see girl getting harassed? How can we smash the isolation jealousy, competitions for male approval) that separate us?
 y can we make it so that it is not each girl/woman's responsibility to deal with sexism individually but make it OF OUR responsibilities???

need to start talking strategy now. Cuz there is very real ss/race/hetero/age privilege bullshit that separates us as ls, and while we can not act as if "Sisterhood is Powerful" all cases, WE NEED TO START DIALOGUING MORE and create viorments where dialogue is encouraged.

In a quiet, darkened room, light a candle. Breathe deeply, and let yourself be warmed by the light of the candle. Let its peaceful radiance fill your mind. As thoughts surge in your mind, experience them as if they came from outside. Do not let the flame split into a double image. Keep your eyes focused. Remain for at least five to ten minutes. Relax.
